Putt in the Park

LATEST

Twenty-four hours after we went to press featuring an article stating that Putt in the Park's planning application to take over our bowling greens was still open for comment, Clapham Common Management Advisory Committee went on Twitter announcing, 'Putt in the Park has withdrawn its application for Clapham Common. We will soon be looking at alternative plans for the pavilion and bowling greens on West Side.' Not only does permission to convert the pavilion still stand but also that for building a separate loo block so there will be a major improvement to the area.

Unfortunately it was too late to stop the presses and update the original article so we went on social media ourselves and are now bringing you this separate news item in case you missed it. Whilst we appreciate that there was local support for the project from some of our members, we hope that those among you who objected to the application will regard this as welcome news.

Congratulations to the Friends of Clapham Common on their successful campaign.
